

Building a Movement for Play: KaBOOM! names Auburn among 217 “Playful City USA” Communities

Communities recognized for prioritizing play for children

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE — May 8, 2013

WASHINGTON, D.C. – With research proving play is critical to the overall well-being of children, 217 cities and towns, including the City of Auburn, earned recognition from national non-profit KaBOOM! as 2013 Playful City USA communities for their efforts to give children the childhood they deserve by providing ample opportunities for play.

Today’s generation of children play less than any previous generation despite the vast benefits of play. The Journal of the American Academy of Pediatrics reports that play is essential to the social, emotional, cognitive and physical well-being of children.

Sponsored by the Humana Foundation, Playful City USA is a national program from KaBOOM! that celebrates and promotes local policies that increase play opportunities for children and is a key platform in combating the lack of play among children.

"The City of Auburn does everything it can to support our families and their children," said Auburn Mayor Pete Lewis. "That includes promoting programs that help kids learn, stay healthy and grow to be supportive members of our community."

KaBOOM! selected Auburn for its outstanding dedication to play. Auburn's playful activities include a free summer program providing recreational activities as well as meals for youth in need and also transportation to after-school sports programs. The city has made strong investments in creating opportunities for play for children of all. As part of the Playful City USA program, the City of Auburn was awarded a $20,000 Let's Play grant in 2011 for the playground renovations at Game Farm Park, was awarded $20,000 at the beginning of the year to go toward the new playground at the new Lea Hill Park, and just received a $15,000 grant from KaBOOM! for new outdoor fitness equipment at Game Farm Park.

“Kids need to play actively, every day, at home, in school and in their communities, yet play is disappearing,” said Darell Hammond, Founder and CEO of KaBOOM! and author of The New York Times Best Seller KaBOOM!: A Movement to Save Play. “Children spend nearly eight hours a day in front of a screen; almost half of all poor students are deprived of recess; and to make matters worse, only one in five children live within walking distance of a park. Playful City USA communities like Auburn are creating innovative programs and initiatives and deserve recognition because of their efforts to give kids the childhood they deserve and best prepare them for their future.”

Each of the 2013 Playful City USA communities demonstrated creative commitments to addressing the lack of play among children. Playful City USA celebrates and highlights these unique initiatives developed by communities across the country. A primary goal of Playful City USA is to encourage cities and towns to share ideas, concepts and programs in an effort to increase play opportunities for children. play.

The 217 Playful City USA communities are now eligible for $15,000, $20,000 and $30,000 grants via Let's Play, a community partnership led by Dr Pepper Snapple Group to get kids and families active nationwide. Grant recipients will be announced in the fall.

KaBOOM!, the national non-profit organization dedicated to giving kids the childhood they deserve by bringing play to those who need it most, created Playful City USA in 2007 to help local governments address the lack of play and it is through mayors, city council members, parks and recreation departments, school districts and community leaders that the program succeeds in benefitting children.
